Purpose: Systemically address the achievement gap and issues of cultural sensitivity through professional development focused on best practices related to culturally relevant pedagogy, diversity and learning.

Objective: Participants will be empowered and better equipped to create a culturally relevant learning environment.

Dr. Kevin Henry

Assistant Professor of Education Policy Studies and Practice at the University of Arizona's College of Education, Dr. Kevin Lawrence Henry, Jr.'s program of research revolves around two central, interrelated questions.

The first question critically examines how power and dominance shape and structure educational policies, practices, and reforms.

The second question is concerned with how educational actors - understand, resist, reconstitute and transform educational fields to be more equitable and socially just.
