IMPACT TUCSON: Bullying - Behavior - Bravery Community Forum at Palo Verde, Saturday, July 30

When: 8:30 a.m. - 2:00 p.m., Saturday, July 30, 2016
Where: Palo Verde Magnet High School,
1302 S Avenida Vega

Tucson Unified School District and Justice 4 America invite the community to come together for Impact Tucson, a forum for exploring bullying, behavior and the bravery it takes to make meaningful change that leads to a safe learning environment for all children.

The goals of the forum, scheduled for Saturday, July 30, 2016, at Palo Verde High School in Tucson, Arizona, are to inform the community about Tucson Unified's efforts to address bullying, to teach students how to behave appropriately (rather than to punish them), and to empower all stakeholders to have courageous conversations about causes and solutions to systemic discipline issues.

These conversations include racial/ethnic disparities in exclusionary discipline, fighting in schools, bullying, and classroom disruptions that impact learning environments. Through this forum, the District ultimately seeks to bring people together to discuss its role in providing the best possible education and learning environments for all students—the bullies and the bullied.

Worthwhile change is never easy. As Tucson Unified is moving toward more restorative and less punitive disciplinary practices while simultaneously strengthening policies to ensure safe campuses, it is experiencing what other districts have found: Some public resistance and negative media about the safety of its schools and the well-being of its students. This leaves students, parents, and community members confused about the District's efforts and conflicted about the ongoing change.

The Forum will address these issues and more through a keynote address, two sets of hour-long breakout sessions for participants, and a panel discussion. The Forum will be held in the morning, followed by lunch and a resource fair for parents to receive school supplies, access the TUSD clothing bank, get haircuts, and obtain information about school and community resources, transportation options, and the forthcoming student code of conduct.

#TeamTUSD: Drachman K-8 Montessori Magnet

Check out the staff at Drachman K-8 Montessori Magnet and their "peaceful" message. Principal Jesus Celaya has this to say: The Drachman staff inspires children and adults to be "Responsible and Peaceful!" (Drachman's Mission). Drachman Montessori believes that in order for students to reach their fullest potential, the "whole child" must be nurtured. This means it is necessary to give attention to the reader, mathematician, scientist, athlete, artist, and musician in each child. Drachman's "A" rating from the Arizona Department of Education, its national designation as a Magnet School of Excellence and its National Blue Ribbon Award from the United States Department of Education are tremendous honors that were awarded to the school because of the staff's passion for education and love for inspiring learning in Tucson Unified. Dr. Abel Morado, assistant superintendent of secondary leadership, said he is excited to have parents and members of the public come to the sessions to see the draft of the Code of Conduct, which was formed as a result of the work of an expert consultant, central staff, parents, students, teachers, principals and community representatives.

"The forums will give us an opportunity to explain the proposed Code of Conduct directly to parents, answer questions and receive feedback," Dr. Morado said. "The safety of our students is a top priority, as are fairness and transparency. Two Tucson Unified sports programs win award

The AIA has named Pueblo Magnet High School and Catalina High School as the recipients of the 2016-2017 Tony Komadina Award for Outstanding Girls' Athletic Program. The purpose of the award is to "recognize schools that demonstrate advocacy of, and progress in, girls' athletics." It is handed out each year to one school which competes in the 6A-4A divisions and one school which competes in the 3A-1A divisions.

The application process included submission of ways each school has advanced their girls' athletic programs, including retaining involvement, recruiting coaches, showcasing their teams and promoting equity in both boys' and girls' sports among other things. The finalists then hosted a visit from the selection committee.

This is the first time two Tucson Unified schools have swept the award, and the fourth and fifth time a school from Tucson Unified has won in general. Past district winners include Sabino High School (1991-1992 and 1999-2000) and Sahuaro High School (1992-1993).

Tony Komadina, the award's namesake, was a former executive director of the AIA who was a passionate advocate for girls' sports and pioneered multiple advancements at the high school level in the 1970s and 1980s, such as hosting state finals at collegiate sites. The award has been given since 1987, the last year Mr. Komadina held office. He passed away in May 2011.
