IL-1: Leads for high quality data driven instruction by aligning assessment to sustainable and viable curriculum and by building the capacity of teachers to lead and perfect their craft (4)	Critical Attributes: 1. School-wide instructional decisions are only sometimes made with current research, school data, and best practice in mind. 2. Staff is unaware of achievement gaps and data outlining those gaps. 3. Data is not used regularly in school meetings, or is only used by the principal and not used regularly with and by teachers and/or students to guide interventions and instruction. 4. Teachers cannot discuss their strengths as practitioners. 5. There is no or little evidence of consistent best instructional practice from classroom to classroom. 6. Teacher collaboration is non-existent, minimal, or unintentional. 7. Awareness of and instruction for standards is not evident or is sporadically implemented.	Critical Attributes: 1. Teachers can justify instructional decisions they make both individually and as a team by discussing how these decisions connect to student data and need. 2. Teachers apply feedback from reflective feedback conversations to their instructional practice. 3. Teachers know where to find professional development support aligned to feedback and areas for growth. 4. Evidence of consistent best instructional practice exists from classroom to classroom. 5. Instruction in classrooms aligns with the pedagogy outlined in the TUSD Modified 2013 Danielson Framework for Teaching as well as their individual area of focus. 6. TUSD curricular standards are used during collaborative planning time to align and plan for gradelevel and vertical-content expectations. 7. Teachers have opportunities to observe one another and reflect on their practice together. 8. Collaborative data analysis processes are in place and are prioritized and implemented with fidelity and commitment. 9. School-wide instructional decisions are based on student-level data that includes formative, interim, summative, and other sources of data. 10. Meaningful and relevant data is reviewed at most school meetings in order to set next steps for improvement and inform school-wide instructional decisions. 11. Students use data to understand their progress toward individual goals, grade-level standards, and college readiness. 12. Teachers are regularly observed using technology in classrooms to enhance instruction, as well as outside of instructional time to engage in meaningful data analysis and collaboration with one another.
