Bienvenidos—welcome—to Tucson Unified School District’s fifth annual Summer Institute for Culturally Responsive Learning, proudly presented once again by the Department of Culturally Responsive Pedagogy and Instruction (CRPI). Although this summer’s event takes place online, it once again features an outstanding slate of keynote speakers and a diverse variety of excellent breakout sessions.

The 2020-2021 school year was marked by tragedy. We dealt with a pandemic that took more than half a million lives in the U.S. alone, and millions more throughout the world. We witnessed numerous videotaped incidents of police brutality like George Floyd, Breonna Taylor and Adam Toledo. We sheltered in place to protect our families; yet ventured into the streets to protest injustices. We were taken aback by the unprecedented attack on our nation’s capital and on democracy itself.

Through all of this, we managed to focus on our students’ needs. We adapted to new technology, new teaching tools, and new vocabulary. We learned on the fly, attending hurriedly developed workshops and finding help from our students as well as from each other.

Bolstered by the availability of COVID vaccines, we can begin to recover and heal from the months of relative isolation. At long last we can seek each other out and share our experiences face to face. Healing, however, takes time and involves more than just physical health. Some of us are still mourning, having lost family members, colleagues, or friends. Many of us still suffer from anxiety and depression.

In view of these circumstances, the theme for this year’s conference emphasizes the curative nature of culture: “La Cultura Cura.” Research has demonstrated that student well-being benefits from activities that promote connections to their heritage and cultural identity. Identity plays a key role in the healthy development of children and young adults. Having a strong sense of belonging to their peers and to a shared community makes our students better able to deal with adversity. With a basic understanding of their roots as a foundation, students are more effectively motivated to take self-directed actions toward self-chosen goals. That is the definition of agentic learning.

Finally, our goal of the conference is to connect you to your community as learners. The hope of the conference is to heal and regain hope as we enrage in discussions and lean on each other for support. Thank you for your dedication to your own learning and to our students.
The CRPI Department, created in 2012 as part of a federal court consent decree, is charged with spearheading TUSD’s effort to address the needs of the two historically underserved groups specifically named as plaintiffs in the case: African American and Mexican American students.

To that end, the CRPI Department has designed and implemented a culturally relevant curriculum supported with professional development and culturally relevant materials for elementary, middle and high school instruction.

Logo

The graceful heron depicted in our logo is borrowed from traditional images created by the Akan people of Ghana to symbolize the concept of Sankofa—the collective memory and history of a people. Posing with a backward gaze the bird holds an egg representing the future in its beak.

The Mexica culture also alludes to the heron, naming its storied original homeland Aztlán—meaning “the place of the herons” in the Nahuatl language. This image is bordered by Teacalli – a representation of temples and places of learning in Mexica culture.

The Sankofa-Aztlán connection evokes an ancient understanding about the value of safeguarding our heritage and knowing our origins.

The Culturally Responsive Pedagogy and Instruction department dedicates our summer institute to all those we lost to covid, including our chantlaca and colleague Ismael Arce. Mr. Arce was a teacher and soccer coach at Tucson High Magnet School for twenty years. Under his direction the Badgers won a state championship in 2014, the school’s first in any sport for 26 years. Arce also taught Mexican American History and World History and was a firm supporter of the Mexican American/Raza Studies department, during the state of Arizona’s attack on MAS. We miss you carnal! We will always remember the great love and cariño you showed your students, players, and parents, as well as the loving friendship you offered to so many of us in the CRPI & TUSD community. Que viva Ismael Arce!

Que En Páz Descanza

El Departamento de Interés en Pedagogía Cultural e Instrucción dedica nuestro instituto veraniego a los que han perdido su vida a causa del "COVID 19" incluyendo a nuestro "chantlaca" y colega Ismael Arce. El Maestro Arce fue también Director Técnico por veinte años del equipo de fútbol de la preparatoria "Tucson High Magnet School." Bajo la dirección técnica del Maestro Arce, Los Tejones ("Badgers") fueron campeones estatales en el 2014, el primer campeonato estatal en cualquier deporte de la preparatoria "Tucson High Magnet School" en los últimos 26 años. El Maestro Arce también fue maestro de Historia México-Americana de Historia Mundial y fue un gran apoyador del Departamento de Estudios México-Americanos y de la Raza durante el ataque del Estado de Arizona en contra de este departamento (MAS). ¡Echamos de menos a nuestro carnal! Recordaremos siempre la pasión y cariño que el Maestro Arce demostró hacia sus estudiantes, atletas y madres y padres de familia, así como la calurosa amistad que nos ofreció a muchos y muchas de sus colegas en el CRPI y a la comunidad del distrito escolar. ¡Arriba Ismael Arce! ¡Qué viva Ismael Arce!
Student Corrido: La Mala Suerte de 2020

It was March of 2020 when quarantine started
And it left us all a little broken-hearted
It was all because of the virus that we stayed apart
It was March of 2020 when it did start

TP was hoarded and so was hand sanitizer
Everyone was acting like they were selfish misers
Remotely working and going to school
Social distancing 6 feet is so uncool

It was March of 2020 when quarantine started
And it left us all a little broken-hearted
It was all because of the virus that we stayed apart
It was March of 2020 when it did start

It was hard to breath ‘cause we all had to wear a mask
And Zoom was brand new, to learn it we had to ask
We had to follow the guidelines and had to be smart
And do what they told us and all stay 6 feet apart

It was March of 2020 when quarantine started
And it left us all a little broken-hearted
It was all because of the virus that we stayed apart
It was March of 2020 when it did start

We could not see family and we could not see friends
It felt so bad we thought it was the end
La mala suerte de 2020 que nos toco-It made us all a little poco loco
The award spotlights the achievements of a select number of outstanding TUSD students recognized for overcoming particularly challenging circumstances and demonstrating a strong academic identity while learning to advocate for social justice. All three of this year’s winners are from Teenage Parent High School.

We encourage the students to list the honor on resumes and college admissions letters, noting the Culturally Relevant courses emphasize civic engagement, critical thinking, and structured inquiry.

3:15-3:30 Closing: Wrap/up and Surveys
Lisa Kiang is a Professor of Psychology at Wake Forest University. Her research focuses on ethnic/racial identity development among minoritized youth. Much of her work emphasizes culturally-protective factors such as identity, well-being, and ethnic/racial socialization in the face of marginalization, discrimination, and stereotypes. She is particularly interested in uncovering ways to promote healthy outcomes and adaptive social relationships. Does cultural background or ethnic/racial identification have a protective role in development? What are the precise mechanisms by which these positive effects occur (e.g., through a deeper sense of social belonging or purpose in life)?

Valerie Shirley is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Teaching, Learning and Sociocultural Studies at the University of Arizona. She is the co-founding director of the Indigenous Teacher Education Program that focuses on preparing Indigenous teacher candidates to consider the unique cultural and political contexts of Indigenous communities. She received her Ph.D. in Curriculum Studies from Purdue University and M.S. degree in Curriculum and Instruction from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. Upon receiving her B.A. degree in Elementary Education from Arizona State University, she taught in two elementary schools located in two Indigenous communities in Arizona. She is a member of the Diné Nation (Ma’iideeshgizhinii, Tsinaajinni, Todich’íinii and Honaghaanii clans) which continues to shape her research and pedagogical interests. As such, her previous research work engaged Diné youth in the process of decolonization to critically examine their identities in relation to history and the Diné epistemology. Her research interests are within the areas of critical Indigenous pedagogy, social justice pedagogy, youth empowerment, curriculum development, teacher education and Indigenous education.

Prior to her arrival at the UA, she worked with diverse preservice teachers at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee and Purdue University; relying on the frameworks of critical multicultural education and social justice to support equitable learning experiences for students while encouraging educators to keep issues such as race, class, gender, sexuality, culture, and language at the forefront of curriculum and instruction.
| Breakout | Title: Identity and the Power of Purpose
Presenter: Lisa Kiang
Description: The educational context offers prime opportunities to talk about issues related to identity, race, equity, and justice. Yet, we often feel unequipped, unprepared, or uncomfortable in guiding students through these courageous conversations. This interactive session will focus on discussing concrete strategies and ideas for navigating topics often deemed challenging to talk about. Attendees will be asked to brainstorm, collaborate, and share their own insight and experiences. |
|---|---|
| Breakout B | Title: Better Than Me – Three Generations of Inner Strength – How Personal Narratives & SPARKS Provide a Foundation for Our Students
Presenter: Al Quihuis & Corina T. Ontiveros
Description: Mr. Al Quihuis will share an overview of his book, Better Than Me – Three Generations of Inner Strength, and its genesis, and with Corina T. Ontiveros, connect this book as an example of personal narrative and AZ State Standards, and TUSD’s SPARKS model. |
| Breakout C | Title: Badasses in History Project 9th/11th grade
Presenters: Victoria Bodanyi & Adam Velasco
Description: This teacher presentation will walk participants through the "Badasses in History" project. The lesson has been used in 9th grade Global Issues and 11th grade CR American History. The project pushes students to research unsung heroes in history and create a story board on their lives and their connections to other unlikely heroes in history. |
| Breakout D | Title: Introduction to CRC IDM Units for Social Studies and History
Presenter: Rickyana Estrada
Description: Using the Inquiry Design Model framework, the participants will examine the ADE History and Social Science Standards for middle and high school using Culturally Relevant curriculum and resources to create and implement units of study for their students. SPARKS included! |
| Breakout E | Title: Stamped for US: Linking SPARKS, Stamped: Racism, Antiracism, and You and ELA Reading and Writing Strategies and Supports
Presenter: Teresa Sena
Description: Cultural Perspectives addressed in Stamped align with the SPARKS Framework in this session that focuses on a student-centered approach to The Reading Process (TRP) and (TWP) The Writing Process, including focused note-taking strategies, reflections, presentations of learning (POLs). |
Breakout A

Title: Relational Accountability: Building Coalitions and Solidarity Through Curriculum and Pedagogy
Presenter: Valerie Shirley
Description: Dr. Shirley will expand on the comments she addressed in her keynote presentation and invite participants to engage in critical discussion including question-and-answer session.

Breakout B

Title: “Nuestro Medio Ambiente” – The Cultural Connection of the Natural Environment and the Opportunities it Provides to Our Communities
Presenter: Cam Juarez
Description: A conversation about the relationship diverse communities have with the natural environment. I will propose ways our young people can connect and benefit from experiencing, learning, and ultimately working in natural spaces. Resources for teachers, students, and public-school communities will be shared as well.

| Breakout E | Title: Meeting the Standards by Thinking Outside the Box
Presenter: Jennifer Doorenbos
Description: In this session, participants will learn about several strategies and projects that were successful with students this past year. Teachers will learn a new way to assign a chapter summary, a character analysis using an Amoxtin, and others. Participants will also have a chance to share their successes as well. This is geared for 6-12 ELA teachers. |

| Breakout F | Title: Ethnic & Academic Identity Development Through Chicana/o/x Lit
Presenters: Mario Green & Alexandro “Salo” Escamilla
Description: The ever-growing demographics of Mexican American/Raza students in K-12 U.S. public schools has created a moral imperative to give students the opportunity to read literature that looks at the world through the lens of their ethnicity. At Tucson High, in Mario Greene’s English Mexican American Viewpoint Class, students read multiple texts by and about Mexican Americans/Raza, nurturing their academic and ethnic identity. This breakout session will look at and discuss how the research on ethnic/academic identity development, and the implementation of Chicana/o/x/Raza children’s and young adult literature, can make the concept of ‘la cultura cura’ a reality in our classrooms. |

<td>Students tend to succeed when mechanism are in place to support them. Opportunity gaps, particularly for Black and Brown students, those who live below the poverty line, Muslim students, those whose first language is not English, and those who have a learning disability can result in students’ lack of academic and social success. Moreover, gaps in opportunity can result in office referral, suspension and expulsion hindering students’ learning opportunities and contributing to what has been called a school-to-prison pipeline. With an explicit focus on disrupting inequity inside and outside of education, this workshop centers a “return” to practice through Opportunity-Centered Teaching as we build mechanisms to support educators, communities, families, and parents in the fight for social justice.</td>

Supplemental Articles

9:45-10:45  Keynote: Julio Cammarota “Living Praxes in PAR (Participatory Action Research) EntreMundos”

Dr. Cammarota's talk introduces a vision of PAR (participatory action research) the provides a framework for not only collectively constructing knowledge but also for determining what counts as knowledge for social justice, ways to reconcile competing theoretical positions, and approaches to teaching what we know. This framework, PAR EntreMundos, translates to PAR in-between worlds, one that exists in liminal spaces, the border region where incongruous ideas, Western colonial thought and Indigenous cosmologies, meet to generate uncertainty yet multiple possibilities of purpose.

Dr. Julio Cammarota is a professor of education at the University of Arizona. His research focuses on participatory action research with Latinx youth, institutional factors in academic achievement, and liberatory pedagogy. He has published articles on family, work, and education among Latinxs and on the relationship between culture and academic achievement. Dr. Cammarota's work has been instrumental with advancing social justice in education and youth development. He is the co-editor of two volumes in the Critical Youth Studies series published by Routledge/Falmer Press: Beyond Resistance! Youth Activism and Community Change: New Democratic Possibilities for Practice and Policy for America’s Youth (2006) and Revolutionizing Education: Youth Participatory Action Research in Motion (2008). In addition, Dr. Cammarota has published an ethnography of Latinx youth entitled, Sueños Americanos: Barrio Youth Negotiate Social and Cultural Identities (University of Arizona Press, 2008). His work includes co-editing a volume on the struggle for ethnic studies in Tucson, Arizona: Raza Studies: The Public Option for Educational Revolution (University of Arizona Press, 2014). Finally, he recently published an edited collection on participatory action research for Latinx communities, entitled PAR EntreMundos: A Pedagogy of Las Americas.

Erika Sanchez is a poet, novelist, and essayist. Her debut poetry collection explores what it means to live on both sides of the border—the border between countries, languages, despair and possibility. As the daughter of Mexican immigrants growing up in the working-class town of Cicero, Illinois, Erika has always been determined to defy borders and tells her own story as part of a family steeped in faith, work, grief, and expectations. Erika’s literary works include Lessons on Expulsion, published by Graywolf in July 2017, a finalist for the PEN America Open Book Award. Her debut young adult novel, I Am Not Your Perfect Mexican Daughter, was published in October 2017 by Knopf Books for Young Readers, is a New York Times Bestseller and a National Book Awards 2017 Finalist for Young People's Literature. Her memoir Crying in the Bathroom is forthcoming from Viking in 2022. Erika graduated Phi Beta Kappa and Magna Cum Laude from the University of Illinois at Chicago, then went onto Madrid, Spain on a Fulbright Scholarship. Erika was a 2017-2019 Princeton Arts Fellow, and a recent recipient of the 21st Century Award from the Chicago Public Library Foundation and a National Endowment for the Arts Fellowship in Poetry. She has recently been appointed the Sor Juana Inés de la Cruz Chair in the Latin American and Latino Studies Department at DePaul University and is part of the inaugural core faculty of the Randolph College Low Residency MFA Program.

| Breakout B | Title: Student Collaborative Research Projects
| Facilitators: Rickyana Estrada & Jessica Bernal-Mejia
| Description: This session will have two high school student research presentations with Q & A. Following the presentations, students and teachers will debrief the research process, strategies and techniques used in the classroom.
| Unspoken truth of US Army – Genesis Vazquez – Tucson High School
| The sexual assault cases in the United States Army in Tucson specifically.
| Addressing Discipline & Harassment at Our School – Stephanie España; Marco Lopez, Malia Lujan, MaryJane Lopez -- La Joya Feminist Club, La Joya Community High School
| A discussion on harassment revolving around dress codes at our school. We began to wonder if dress code is more for the teachers’ benefit or the students. We also wondered about the impact of “correcting” dress code. Whose behavior should be “corrected?” The student or those who are “distracted?” We plan to gather student stories across grade levels as well as survey data to show the prevalence of these problems at our school. |
| Breakout C | Title: Middle School – Poetry Appreciation
| Presenter: Jennifer Kidd
| Description: This poetry unit is specifically designed to pique students’ interest in poetry, addressing three major genres of poetry. Poetry is most often used as an outlet for human emotion, and serves to evoke deep thoughts, feelings, and emotions from its audience. This lesson addresses unfairness and injustice in many forms. |
| Breakout D | Title: Building Academic Identity through culturally responsive practices
| Presenter: Rosario Hutchings
| Description: This presentation will be looking closely at the Academic Identity tenet in the SPARKS framework. We will be addressing the power of student identity in the engagement and center of classroom instruction. Explicit discussion on academic identity will connect teacher work to student achievement. |
| Breakout E | Title: "WHO ARE YOU? Developing Students' Ethnic and Academic Identity"

<td>Middle School – Poetry Appreciation</td>
<td>Jennifer Kidd</td>
<td>This poetry unit is specifically designed to pique students’ interest in poetry, addressing three major genres of poetry. Poetry is most often used as an outlet for human emotion, and serves to evoke deep thoughts, feelings, and emotions from its audience. This lesson addresses unfairness and injustice in many forms.</td>

<td>Meeting the Standards by Thinking Outside the Box</td>
<td>Jennifer Doorenbos</td>
<td>In this session, participants will learn about several strategies and projects that were successful with students this past year. Teachers will learn a new way to assign a chapter summary, a character analysis using an Amoxtin, and others. Participants will also have a chance to share their successes as well. This is geared for 6-12 ELA teachers.</td>

<td>Intergenerational Wisdom through Podcasting: Strengthening Student-Community Engagement</td>
<td>Victoria Bravo</td>
<td>Intergenerational wisdom encompasses knowledge, ideas and skills that are shared among generations: children, teenagers, and adults. Just as older adults can pass down their wisdom, students can pass along some current ways of the world, offering perspectives, sharing interesting stories and personal experiences. Furthermore, podcasts enable students to access this shared information anytime they want.</td>
