Social-emotional learning (SEL), as defined by the Collaborative for Academic, Social, and Emotional Learning (CASEL) is:

- “the process through which children and adults acquire and effectively apply the knowledge, attitudes, and skills necessary to understand and manage emotions, set and achieve positive goals, feel and show empathy for others, establish and maintain positive relationships, and make responsible decisions.”
Self-Awareness

Collaborative for Academic, Social, and Emotional Learning (CASEL)

Skills Associated with Self-Awareness:

Identify emotions

Have an accurate self-perception

Recognize strengths – We each have unique strengths, and it is vital that we each recognize and build on them. An important piece of social emotional health is a focus on positive attributes.

Possess self-confidence – When students are able to recognize their strengths, their self-confidence grows. Again, self-confidence is an integral piece of a healthy social emotional state.

Demonstrate self-efficacy – Self-efficacy is an individual’s belief in their ability to achieve a goal. Recent research suggests that by believing you are capable of something, you help yourself on the path to achieving it.

Ability to:

- Recognize one’s own emotions, thoughts, and values, and how they influence behavior.

- Assess one’s strengths and limitations, with a well-grounded sense of confidence, optimism, and a “growth mindset.”

- Self-awareness is the ability to understand oneself.

Self-Management

Ability to:

- Manage one’s emotions, thoughts, and behaviors effectively in different situations and to achieve goals and aspirations.
- Delay gratification, manage stress, and feel motivation and agency to accomplish personal and collective goals.
- Help adults and students manage the stress associated with adapting to a new school climate or culture, cope with discrimination, and come up with individual and collective solutions in the face of challenges.

Self-Management May Look Like:

- Impulse control
- Stress management
- Self-discipline
- Self-motivation
- Goal-setting
- Organizational skills

Self-Management May Sound Like:

- I need a break right now
- I am not ready to share.
- I need help with ________.
- I think I need help with ________.
- I will ________ to reach my goal.
Self-Management Strategy: Positive Self-Talk

Self-talk is "the act of practice of talking to oneself, either aloud or silently and mentally." Generally, negative self-talk makes us feel worse, but positive self-talk can make us feel better because it triggers problem-solving and helps remind ourselves that making mistakes is part of life.

Activity:

- Think about a time when you have felt defeated in a certain situation; how did you turn that situation around to have a positive outcome.
- Share with a partner about that situation and what was your process for the positive outcome.
Social Awareness
Social Awareness

Ability to:

- Understand the perspectives of and empathize with others, including those from diverse backgrounds, cultures, and contexts.
- To feel compassion for others, understand broader historical and social norms for behavior in different settings, and recognize family, school, and community resources and supports.
- Help adults and students navigate norms in diverse social settings, recognize issues of race and class in different settings, understand power dynamics, and come up with ways to create a positive school climate that honors diversity.

Skills Associated with Social Awareness

- Perspective-taking: Perspective-taking involves the ability to look at and understand a situation or concept from an alternate point of view.
- Empathy: Empathy is defined as the ability to understand and share the feelings of another. A common saying associated with empathy is to “put yourself in his/her shoes.”
- Appreciating diversity: Students should learn the value in recognizing that each individual is unique and that differences in race, creed, gender, sexual orientation, or belief should be celebrated rather than ignored or argued.
- Respect for others: Respect requires students to view the world with an open mind and to ask questions rather than make judgments. Despite their differences, students are asked to treat each other with kindness and curiosity rather than hatred or prejudice.

Social Awareness Strategy: The Listening Circle

- The Listening Circle teaches empathy, provides an opportunity to hear (or read) different perspectives, and builds community. In a listening circle, students have a safe space to share their voices by responding to prompts. Example prompts include: "Who do you look up to the most, and why?" and "What advice would you give yourself today, and why?"

Relationship Skills Strategy: Rose, Bud, Thorn

Rose, Bud, Thorn is a strategy that helps students identify positive moments and areas where they need support. During this activity, students share a:

• Rose: Something positive that happened this past week
• Bud: Something you are looking forward to next week
• Thorn: Something you need help with in the next week

To foster grit and growth mindset, students may also consider ways to turn thorns into roses.

Responsible Decision-Making

Ability to:

- Make caring and constructive choices about personal behavior and social interactions across diverse situations.
- To consider ethical standards and safety concerns, and to evaluate the benefits and consequences of various actions for personal, social, and collective well-being.
- Helps adults and students make decisions that are inclusive and equitable, understand the systemic implications of different outcomes, and reflect on how actions and decisions can impact equity.

Responsible Decision-Making May Look Like:

- Identifying problems
- Analyzing situations
- Solving problems
- Evaluating
- Reflecting
- Ethical responsibility

Responsible Decision-Making May Sound Like:

- How will this impact others?
- Is it worth it?
- Why do I want to make this choice?
- Was this a strong choice?
- Will this help me?
1. Identify the problem.
2. Explore different options to solve the problem.
3. Discuss an outcome for each option.
4. Choose an option.
5. Reflect on how things went.
